Box 005	Agriculture-Gypsy Moth	1971-1972	See oversize box 11 contains photographs, original captions of photos: 1. John Bitzer, Pennsylvania Department of Forests & Waters District Forester, points out a gypsy moth entering the pupa stage of its life cycle. 2. Art Greeley of the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture examines a sapling on which gypsy moth have fed. 3. Standing beneath a gypsy moth-eaten tree are: Marshall Rees, Chairman of the Monroe Co. (Pa.) Planning Commission; a Pennsylvania State Forester; and Art Greeley, Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture. Behind them is Lake Chicola. The far bank of the lake was effectively sprayed with Sevin oil pesticide; it remained green. 8,500 acres on the ridge beyond were not sprayed; trees there were completely defoliated. 4. A gypsy moth larva entering pupa stage. 5. Thousands of gypsy moths are infesting valuable recreation lands in Pennsylvania's Pocono Mountains near Stroudsburg, Pa. Forestry experts predict their numbers will increase next year, since spray treatment alone has proven ineffective. A well-planned research effort, combining biotic control with improved pesticides and tree culturing measures offers some hope. 6. Douglas Williams, Administrator of the Monroe Co. (Pa.) Planning Commission, fingers a gypsy moth larva.	11b

Title: 110/111th Congress-Correspondence-Constituent

Date: 1986-2010

Level: Subseries, Archival

Scope & Content: Correspondence between Senator Byrd and his constituents arranged by staff name, chronologically and then by subject. from the 110th and 111th Congresses (2007-2010). Folders may also contain documents related to the subject of correspondence such as press, legislation, congressional records, meeting notes, etc.

Note: Both Congresses are included because they were the working files in Senator Byrd's office at the time he passed in office. Further, since the Correspondence files were divided by staff member and not Constituent/WV (as was the case with previously archived congresses), all of the correspondence is contained within this subseries.
